INTRODUCTION

Madhya Pradesh, a major state of India, is famous for its diversity and rich cultural heritage. The folk art of this state, which includes singing, dancing, art, and architecture, reflects a glorious part of Indian culture. There is diversity and theatricality in the folk art of Madhya Pradesh. The folk dances and music here, such as Bhil and Gond folk dances, folk music of Malwa and Bundelkhand, and Khandari art, are rich and beautiful. These folk arts are not only the identity of the people of this state, but are also recognized at the international level. The folk art of Madhya Pradesh includes ballads, jargons, folk dances, folk games, and other forms of folk art, which highlight its historical, cultural, and lifestyle. Through these arts, people keep their traditions alive and provide a medium to understand and express their role. The folk art of Madhya Pradesh is not only exciting, but it is a reflection of a rich and diverse culture. The art and cultural heritage here inspires and fascinates people all over the world. We must give them importance to keep alive and promote the folk arts of this state so that this richness can be dedicated and the coming generations can enjoy their official and cultural identity.

ANALYSIS OF PROBLEMS AND OPPORTUNITIES OF FOLK ART OF MADHYA PRADESH

While analyzing the problems and opportunities of folk art of Madhya Pradesh, we have to face the challenges that are affecting the sector, while also recognizing the opportunities that exist for promoting folk art. Challenges of cultural conservation: Changing lifestyle, global rights, and modern technological advancement have infected the folk art of Madhya Pradesh. Amidst the challenges of cultural preservation, we need innovative approaches with sensitivity and respect to preserve the values of folk art. Economic inequality: The development of some folk art performances, education, and broadcasting is not reaching the beneficiaries, leading to economic inequality in the region. Social organizations, government policies, and modern technological measures can be used to improve it. Broadcast and encouragement: More encouragement and resources are needed to disseminate folk art in the modern world. Organizations, government officials, and business organizations need to work to disseminate and promote it. Organizations and educational aspects: Organizations and educational institutions have an important role to play in preserving and promoting folk art. With the help of organizations, local artists can be encouraged and provided with higher level of education and training. Along with these problems, there are many opportunities in the folk art of Madhya Pradesh. Community organizations, government programs, and entrepreneurs can use these opportunities to enrich and respect folk art. This not only develops local artists but also enriches and preserves the cultural heritage of the state.
